Facts about psychological grooming

A few weeks ago, we looked at physical grooming and how predators use it to lure victims. Another type of grooming is psychological, in which a predator spends a great deal of time with his or her victim, showering them with attention and making the victim feel a shared connection. When the predator becomes a peer to the child, then he has control. He can then offer special treatment – or threaten to take away that treatment, and even make threats against the child’s family, pets, and other friends. For more information about psychological grooming, read the VIRTUS® article “The Grooming Process” at lacatholics.org/did-you-know.
